Of the Famous
Enigmatical Epitaph,
Which is seen near

ÆLIA LÆLIA CRISPIS, &c.

THis Epitaph has made so much noise in the World, and so much exercised the Criticks, that perhaps the Reader would have been pleased to have found a more particular Account thereof in my Letters from Bolonia. I would indeed have somewhat enlarged thereupon, but I considered, that I could not do it without engaging my self into a digression too long for a Letter. I contented my self therefore to insert the Epitaph it self; but having now an opportunity in this Third Edition to make some Additions to my former Letters, I hope the Reader will kindly accept the following Account of that famous Riddle, which I have mostly collected from the Conversation I had with Dr. Charles Cæsar Malvasia*.
